Description

Vesper's hull design, crafted by Germán Frers, seamlessly merges performance, oceanic comfort, and onboard livability. This meticulously balanced hull ensures optimal performance at a 20-degree heel angle, while maintaining a comfortable and habitable environment in all sea conditions. Its twin rudder configuration enhances stability, mitigating any tendency to broach and ensuring precise steering even at full heel. Furthermore, the reduced draft of the double rudder blades expands cruising capabilities, facilitating access to shallow waters and smaller harbors alongside the efficiently designed T-shaped keel.

Inside, Vesper exudes a sense of spaciousness and brightness, illuminated by natural light from various sources. The three-cabin layout includes a forward owner's cabin with an en-suite head and separate shower compartment. A VIP cabin and another guest cabin with shared facilities can be found aft.

The main saloon, positioned at the heart of the vessel, boasts an expansive and open layout. A U-shaped sofa graces the port side, while a chart table adorns the starboard.

The galley is designed for unrestricted movement, featuring a domestic-sized fridge and ample storage space, including lockers above the sink, all finished with a sleek Corian surface.
