Description

The spirit of sailing is adventure. It's fair winds rippling across thick canvas sails, the sun on your face, calm seas, and a convivial setting with family and friends. It's about circumnavigation, remote locations, and adrenaline-fueled thrills. But it's not about risk – not ever.

With 145 GT of interior volume and four spacious staterooms, Melody can easily accommodate eight guests. She has a large dining area and ambient saloon, yet she best lends herself to an alfresco lifestyle with large expansive deck spaces, a Jacuzzi with panoramic views and a number of casual outdoor conversational areas. She's state-of-the-art and equipped with infotainment and audio-visual units, supplied by Bose.

Safety is paramount, and when Ridas was approached by a client with a dream to 'build the world's safest sailing yacht to go anywhere, without sacrifice to ease of handling and onboard comfort,' the Tallinn-based shipyard knew it had a challenge on its hands. An important one too – and didn't shy away from the task. The saying 'dreams are made' is over-saturated and rarely a term fairly used. It's a throwaway term – disposable if you will – yet in the case of the 41.54-meter sailing yacht Melody, it couldn't be closer to the truth.

Characterised by long, sweeping lines, open decks, a raised pilothouse, and more than 1,400 square metres of billowing Dacron sails, Melody strikes an impressive silhouette. She's a yacht suited for exploring the Pacific as she is for shallows, coastal, and inland waters. And she looks fantastic sailing both. Melody
