Yacht ready at the buoy.

The shipyard had already demonstrated great style with the Opera 80 which was then extended to the design of the 85-footer. From the outside, the appearance is an extension of what has already been done, but the interior is absolutely different, and completely surprising. Stepping aboard this motoryacht gives you a feeling of theatre. You can almost breathe in the quality, and you can certainly see it in the details and the overall impact. Walking through the doors of the salon you can see Riva quality in all its splendour. The use of Canaletto Walnut, a straight-grained Italian version of the twisted grain walnut widely used for antique furniture, on the Opera provides the perfect backdrop for leather and fabric interiors. Leather is the other unusual feature of the interior style. Rich and shiny, it is used for furniture upholstery, for the coffee table and for details.

In terms of layout, the Opera follows conventions with separate lounge and dining areas on the main deck. The galley is hidden behind the wheelhouse; The
