Description

This Ferretti 681, a stunning 21-meter flying bridge yacht, stands as a testament to the innovative partnership between Studio Zuccon International Project and the Ferretti Group's Engineering Division. This vessel is masterfully designed to maximize space efficiency, showcasing a spacious cockpit that features a folding bench and a teak table, accommodating up to 8 guests. The cockpit seamlessly connects to the luxurious lounge and the crew quarters via a sliding door topped with a hinged window.

Upon entering the lounge, guests are greeted by a fresh and contemporary aesthetic that breathes new life into the boat's interior. A reimagined layout enhances the furnishings and sofas, all adorned with rich wood finishes that evoke a warm and cosy, home-like inviting atmosphere. On the starboard side, the lounge offers a comfortable living area, furnished with an armchair, a small coffee table, and an L-shaped sofa, strategically positioned for optimal viewing of the television, which is housed within a cabinet that also contains a refrigerator.

Two steps from the living space lead to the pilot bridge and the dinette. The helm station is thoughtfully designed, with all controls arranged on a single level for ease of use. Adjacent to the pilot bridge, the dinette boasts an L-shaped leather sofa and a dining table that comfortably seats up to 8. A cleverly designed staircase leads to the flybridge without obstructing the lounge's view. The well-appointed galley, which can be discreetly closed off with a sliding door, is conveniently located across from the dining area. A separate sliding door allows the crew to access the galley and pilot bridge through a hatch, ensuring guest
