sanlorenzo S196a

Description

SL96Asymmetric rethinks the canonical layout of a yacht, rewrites the conventional balance on board by offering not only volumes hitherto intended for other functions, but above all by creating new life scenarios, new points of view capable of intensifying and fostering that visceral visual, physical and emotional bond that exists between man and the sea. By keeping only the walkway on the starboard side and eliminating the left side, which is brought to the roof of the superstructure, SL96A allows through this asymmetrical configuration, already tested on SL102A, to recover about 10 square meters of surface area in favor of the interiors. A proposal that thus allows to offer, compared to a traditional yacht layout, more space, brightness, relaxation and better flexibility of use.
