Description

Carlo Riva, founder of the Riva Shipyards, is the mind behind the MonteCarlo Offshorer project in the 70s.

Carlo Riva, founder of the Riva Shipyards, is the mind behind the MonteCarlo Offshorer project in the 70s. Immediately after selling the Riva Shipyard to Bertram, Ing. Riva imported a futuristic idea with a deep V hull from the United States, a highly innovative project because the overhangs in the hull would create a "lift" effect, making it faster and lighter on the surface of the water. Bob Hobbs, a visionary mathematician and marine engineer, invented the first hull with a V-step design, but encountered major production problems in South Florida. Carlo Riva was close to him, he also involved Cal Connell (owner and founder of Mercruiser) and brought the innovative concept to Italy to put it into production. Thus was born MonteCarlo Offshorer, in a small shipyard in Ventimiglia called "Mare e Sole", a few miles from Monaco.

The Monte-Carlo Offshorer soon became the "icon" of the French Riviera. A total of 343 were built: one of the most successful stories in the nautical sector.

The unmistakable MonteCarlo Offshorer logo strongly evokes the concept of speed and at the same time recalls the glittering years of the "Dolce Vita" on the Côte d'Azur. Today it is still considered one of the most elegant boats ever designed with the hull and waterlines that are still considered the best ever designed today, allowing for great maneuverability, seaworthiness and very high speeds even in rough seas.
