Description

The Riva Rudy was introduced in 1972 to replace the Junior and the Olympic. This new model also belongs to the same type of Utility/Open as its predecessors, thus making it an extremely versatile boat suitable both as a tender and as a boat for water sports (water skiing, fishing). Designed by the architect Barilani to be made of fiberglass, it retains some mahogany details such as the side handrails and the shelf for objects behind the steering seat, giving the boat greater refinement. The main feature is the deep walkaround cockpit that can be walked through in total safety, an aspect much appreciated especially by families.

The example in question is number 1 in the series and therefore made as a totally wooden mold.

The boat is in impeccable condition as it has been completely restored and maniacally maintained by the current owner.

During the restoration, the following work was carried out:

- new blanket
- new fund
- new transom
- new deck hardware
- Reconditioned engine instrumentation
- Hull resin coating with West Epoxy System

The motor and inverter have been dismantled and completely overhauled.

In addition, a new Edelbrock carburetor was purchased.

Unique boat in the world, for true fans of the brand and used after
