Description

– A REAL GEM –

Boat maintained in impeccable condition

MOTOR YACHT GAIA has a history of great charm and interest behind it: is a displacement shuttle built in the late 50s in the German Schurenstedt shipyard. Original name: Kormoran refurbished for a German owner as a pleasure M/Y, later sold to an Italian owner and transferred to the Mediterranean.

Over the years it has been acquired again by a Sicilian owner who, at the Rodriguez shipyard with the naval architect Biriaco, gives the shuttle its current configuration with the extension of the flybridge. The hull remains original to this day.

In the early 2000s, a new Italian owner kept the shuttle until 2008, when it was purchased by the current owner. The shuttle was in a covered storage in Genoa Voltri completely dismantled only with the new engines and generator set (0 hours) assembled but not installed and with the load-bearing structures.

Starting from 2008, the engines and generators were installed by Cummins of S. Margherita Ligure. The interiors designed by the naval architect of Rome Alessio Luini were made and assembled by a German carpentry workshop.

In 2010 the shuttle was transferred to the Marina di Genova for final installations and tests carried out by RINA Italiano. It was later recorded in Vienna.

All the on-board electronics were installed in 2009 and subsequently overhauled by Massimo Orlandini's Etruria Service of San Vincenzo (FI)
