Description

The Camuffo Shipyard, the oldest shipyard in the world, universally recognized, has gone through six centuries of history. For 18 generations, the Camuffo family has been renewing the values of uniqueness and exclusivity with their boats, which have earned them the nickname of "Stradivarius of the Sea". This brief excursus through six centuries of wooden shipbuilding for the most diverse uses of fishing, transport, military and pleasure, illustrates and proposes, with the testimony of facts and works, the uniqueness and exclusivity of the Camuffo Shipyard, universally considered the oldest shipyard in the world, for its unparalleled values-qualities of unrepeatable, uninterrupted and documented history, of a boat made entirely of high-tech wood, the superlamellar marine armoured yacht, of unlimited duration, and of incomparable performance at sea (the C55 with a displacement of 20 tons, with the same conditions - weight/power - cruising at 30 knots, thanks to its high-performance hull, saves over 50% in fuel consumption). In the eighties, the magazine Nautica wrote of Camuffo 'A reference point for Italian boating and a touchstone for how you intend to sail and experience the sea in the best comfort and absolute safety, with a real boat'. Today, in the midst of a global crisis in which confidence is struggling to make its way, but which makes us reflect on the future of a pleasure boating, sees the Camuffo Shipyard, in the best conditions to guarantee the values of its buildings (as shown by the second-hand market), to renew over time that mythical icon and predicate to the name of 'Stradivarius of the Sea', so that the legend continues.
